- ◆ Not able to find appropriate health education materials for the community you work with? Health topics you address?
- ◆ Need to create your own program flyers or health ed. materials?

This training will assist you in creating health messages to respond to your target group's cultural, linguistic and literacy needs. It will also give you writing tips for making these messages easy-to-read. You will learn how to design visuals that effectively communicate your health messages and layouts for making materials easy to understand.

Bring your program's materials (brochures, flyers, etc.) and in a friendly environment get new ideas from colleagues on how to improve these materials. And bring back to your program materials that are more population-specific, culturally relevant and effective.

Trainings are free of charge, but you will be held to CHEC's policies. Deadline for registering is December 5, 2008.
